Quality and environmental policy

At Nordmark, quality is a matter of proactively and critically meeting the customer's needs, demands and expectations.

Close cooperation and good communication between customers, suppliers and employees must ensure that Nordmark always secures and delivers the optimal solution in relation to the customer's needs. This applies to both the physical product and the associated checks and documentation.

The environment has always been part of Nordmark's perception of quality, but the times require a more proactive approach.

Nordmark increases our efforts through our environmental management system and objectives for our performance.

We will secure an engaged workforce that actively participates in the ongoing development of our QHSE procedures including the Act on what you see behavioral approach.
